- Co-Author, “The Comedy Bible: The Complete Resource For Aspiring Comedians”
- Author, “Sometimes Ask A Man”
- Featured on NBC’s “Last Comic Standing”

Traci Skene is a veteran professional comedian, author of an internationally-published book on standup comedy and an accomplished humor writer and blogger.

In 2010, Traci Skene was a featured performer on Episode 3, Season 7 of NBC’s reality show “Last Comic Standing,” taped at the world famous Gotham Comedy Club in New York City.

She co-authored (with husband and fellow comedian Brian McKim) their first book, “The Comedy Bible, The Complete Resource For Aspiring Comedians,” drawing on their 25 years of experience as professional comedians and their 13 years as editors and publishers of the influential standup comedy website-- SHECKYmagazine.com!

“The Comedy Bible” was published in 2011 by Barron’s Educational Series (U.S. & North America) and Quintet Publishing Ltd. (London and Worldwide) and is available at Barnes & Noble bookstores or online at Amazon.com. ($22.99 U.S./$17.50 Canada)

She also authored “Sometimes Ask A Man,” which hilariously skewers traditional social and sexual mores as well as modern feminism. Available for download from Amazon.com for $1.99!

Her skewed take on fashion and pop culture is regularly featured in US Weekly’s popular “Fashion Police,” where Traci has been a “Top Cop” since 2002!

Her standup comedy has been featured on A&E, Lifetime and VH-1 and she is a featured performer and headliner at comedy clubs across the United States and Canada. She’s performed in all 50 states!

She is based in Las Vegas, NV, where she regularly appears in clubs and showrooms at The Tropicana, Harrah’s, The Riviera, The Orleans and Bally’s.
